December 2006 Volume 48 Issue 4

ASQ Section 1508 St. Petersburg/ Tampa
DINNER MEETING
Monday, December 11, 2006

Speaker: Jack Hipple, Elliott Consulting

How to Keep the Grinch from Stealing Your Business

Our businesses are precious to us. They support us individually, our families, and our communities. We don't often think sufficiently about the potential loss of our businesses, or our employees.

Business Continuity Planning involves thinking ahead as to what you are going to do should a natural disaster (hurricane, flu pandemic) or an unnatural disaster (terrorist threat) occur. This talk will review the basics of CEO Business Continuity Planning and how to challenge a plan if it exists.

Elliot Consulting Services (ECS) is a 4 year old consulting firm based in the Tampa Bay Florida area which specializes in business survival solutions. ECS functions as a third party advocate to help companies create, develop, and implement business continuity plans which are designed to protect their vital business resources and operational processes. ECS will review, audit, and help modify a company's existing disaster recovery model to ensure that the essential components of the organization will continue to function in the event of an unplanned disruptive incident. At the conclusion of a consulting engagement ECS will award a Certificate of Business Resilience for the development of a Business Continuity Plan in accordance with industry standards and best practices.

Elliot Consulting is part of the Department of Homeland Security's national vendor list of organizations providing business continuity planning services that have met the DHS/FEMA standards. In addition ECS was one of roughly 1200 national, regional, state and local organizations which cross-marketed DHS's National Preparedness Month (NPM) efforts and continues to utilize that information within educational seminars.

Additional information can be found on the ECS website: <http://www.elliott-consulting.com>.

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR CHAIR

“It is not enough to know what is good: you must be able to do it.”
George Bernard Shaw

Dear members:

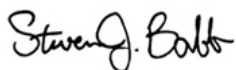

Already we are nearing our last meeting of the year 2006. Maybe the season of corporate planning, strategy, and goal-setting has already begun for you, or better yet you might attend to these important activities year-round. Also, we will soon be tempted to make personal resolutions for the new year- some of which we will actually achieve!

As your Chairperson, I sincerely hope you are taking advantage of everything ASQ has to offer to expand your personal capabilities as well as the capabilities of the organizations you are part of. George Bernard Shaw pointed out that ability is at least as important as good ideas!

At the November meeting, Jim Clark, Chief of Pharmacy at the VA Medical Center/ Baypines, gave the Section a really interesting overview of progress made over the last fourteen years. In 1992 the VA was considered the healthcare system of “last resort”. Ken Kizer took the position as VA Health Under Secretary and immediately applied good business decision-making and quality principles. Numerous under-used facilities were closed, fully electronic patient records systems were implemented, and resources were re-allocated across the US. Automation and technology were developed that are still considered “cutting-edge”. Now, a new culture of accountability results in patient costs of about $5000/ yr compared to $6,300/yr. for private industry. According to Time and Business Week the VA Healthcare system is now often the first choice rather than the last. Not to say that all this change hasn't been without lots of controversy and some mistakes along the way, but anyone looking back fourteen years compared to today would be impressed. Jim Clark told us that developing the new culture was one of the most important things the VA did to enable all these good ideas.

I hope to see you at the December meeting. Jack Hipple of Elliott Consulting Services will fill us in on how to protect our businesses from disasters of all kinds- including the Grinch. It should make for an interesting meeting. In any case, may you and your families have an enjoyable and fulfilling holiday season. 2007 awaits us around the corner.

Sincerely,

Steve Babb
